CHIEF OF POLICE TURNS JOURNALIST

Head of Department Delivers
Address to Newspaper Men.

Wednesday, March 31, 1926 will always be remembered as a red letter day in the history of the Mishawaka branch of The News-Times. Here is the reason.

About 10:30 in the morning the city hall reporter snatched into the police station, and as per custom inquired casually of Chief of Police V. J. Pfender if there was "anything doing." It so happened that a representative of the Tribune was also present and Mishawaka's small town constable deemed it the proper time to launch his opinion on how the local newspapers should be run.

The chief's sonorous tones resounded through the halls of the administration building and it was not long before half of the city employees were aware that the lion had in some way gotten his iron. It is impossible to give a correct report of all that transpired in the sacred sanctum of the law, but one thing was very evident, and that was that the wearer of the big brass buttons was not at all in love with a couple of newspaper men who stood quivering before him.

Would be Censor.

It seems that the chief would, in addition to his regular duties, like very much to be permitted to hold down the city editor's job at the local office. He is not at all pleased with the publicity that is given to men when they succeed in rounding up an unfortunate victim of hard cider, and would much prefer that the papers refrain from publishing anything that has not passed the censoring eye of the head of the department.

According to Pfender, there is too much stuff leaking out at the police station, which is intended only for the ears of those who wear a badge. Strange to relate, neither reporter is able to recall of ever having to write more than a stick or two after having covered the entire city hall. And yet there is too much being published. The chief says so. He does not realize that, as a public servant, he is open to the criticism of the citizens of the community.

AT THE TEMPLE.

Bert Lytell in "Lombardi Ltd." will be shown for the last time at the Temple theater today. Mr. Lytell never appeared to greater advantage than he does in this production, and those who attended the performances yesterday came away with warm words of praise of the picture.

LYON AND HEALY TO OPEN STORE IN CITY

Big Chicago Musical House
Takes Lease on North
Main St. Building.

Lyon and Healy, of Chicago, wholesale and retail dealers in pianos and all kinds of musical instruments, one of the largest houses of its kind in the country, will open a branch retail store in Mishawaka on or about the first of May. A representative of the firm was in the city Wednesday and signed a five-year's lease of the building at present occupied by Joe's Smokeshop, at 109 North Main st. The property is owned by Mrs. Henry Buchel. The present tenant of the building, Joseph Groveski, has purchased the store on Lincoln way W. formerly occupied by the Den of Sweets, which has gone out of business. The room is being enlarged and when finished will make one of the finest billiard halls in the city. Repairs are expected to be completed by the first of May.

The opening of an exclusive music store in Mishawaka is fraught with much interest to the city. It will be the first of its kind ever established here, although several of the merchants handle lines of talking machines.

At present there is not a vacant store in Mishawaka and several others were after the building leased by the Chicago firm.

APRIL FOOL PARTY.

Members of the Woodmen circle are invited to an April Fool party Thursday evening in Orchestra hall. They are each requested to come and bring a lady friend.
